Senators Blast Government over Insecurity in North

KABUL - Expressing deep concern over increased insurgency in northern Afghanistan since the start of the Taliban's spring offensive, members of Meshrano Jirga (Upper House of Parliament) warned Sunday that several northern areas are on the verge of collapse.

The senators stated in Sunday's session that about 400 Chechen families and many other insurgents from Central Asia were sheltering along the borders between Afghanistan and Turkmenistan.

They called on the security agencies to deploy additional troops to northern Kunduz, Takhar, Badakhshan, Samangan, Faryab and Sar-e-Pul provinces.

"The information that we have shows that 400 Chechen families and other Central Asians are sheltering along our borders with Turkmenistan, and they are preparing for battle," senator Gul Mohammad Rasooli.

Increased abductions on the highways was the other major concern of the senators. They demanded the security agencies to address the issue as a matter of urgency.

"Kidnapping on the highways has now become ... (More on P4)...(1)
