Gov't. Must Disclose Result of Kunduz Investigations: MPs

KABUL - The result of the investigations needs to be shared with the public instead of the Presidential Palace, a number of Afghan lawmakers urged. "The result of the collapse needs to be disclosed, delays worry us, the result of the investigations needs to be shared with the public, no political deal should be made," Sadeqi Nilizada a member of Afghan parliament from Daikundi province said. Fakoor Behishti another member of Parliament from Bamyan province stated, "facts must not be kept in the dark, Kunduz collapse affected thousands, the perpetrators needs to be revealed". Presidential spokesman Sayed Zafar Hashimi says the National Security Council will review this report first. "First of all the government will review this report, and then they will take practical actions along with the fact-finding commission members." After the collapse of Kunduz, President Ghani assigned a fact-finding commission to investigate independently. Taliban fighters captured Kunduz province last month and the governmental forces forced Taliban to retreat after three days, but it give Taliban a military and political prize. (ATN)

Anti-Unemployment Movement Closed Door of MoLSAMD

KABUL - Anti-unemployment movement closed the door of Afghanistan's Ministry of Labor, Social Affairs, Martyrs & Disabled MoLSAMD on Sunday to protest for the lack of employment opportunities for Afghan youths. The movement believes the only reason behind migrations, addiction, and insurgency is the lack of employment opportunities and poverty in the country. They youths warn of continuing their protests if the government continues to neglect this catastrophe in the society. "If the ministry of labor, social affairs does not give these people a positive response, we will ... (More on P4)...(7)

Merkel Unable to Defuse German Coalition Dispute on Refugee Policy

BERLIN - German Chancellor Angela Merkel failed on Sunday to resolve differences within her ruling coalition on dealing with party leaders as "constructive", but said they would meet again on Thursday. German media had billed Sunday's meeting as the crisis over a huge refugee influx, leaving open a row that has dented her conservatives' popularity. Germany, Europe's biggest economy and long a magnet for migrants, expects between 800,000 and a million asylum seekers to arrive this year, twice as many as in any previous year, and far more than in any other European Union country. The influx has opened up divisions within the coalition, with the Bavarian sister party of Merkel's conservative Christian Democrats (CDU) demanding tougher action that many in the third ruling party, the Social Democrats (SPD), oppose. Government spokesman Steffen Seibert described talks on Sunday between the three a crisis summit. "There is a lot of common ground and some points that remain open and still to be settled," Steffen said, adding that these included the idea of introducing so-called "transit zones" at border crossings to process asylum requests. Looking glum, SPD leader Sigmar Gabriel left the chancellery after a 2-hour meeting with Merkel and Horst Seehofer, leader of the Bavarian Christian Social Union (CSU). Bavaria is bearing the brunt of the influx and Seehofer is under intense pressure from municipalities in his state to press the federal government to stem the tide of arrivals from war- and poverty-stricken areas of the Middle East, Asia and Africa. Evils, Rival Countries Given Hands to Face Afghanistan with Challenges: Gen. Qadam

KABUL - International terrorists, narcotics smugglers, terrorists groups and rival countries of Afghanistan have given hands together to face Afghanistan with challenges, Chief of Army Staff General Qadam Shah Shahim said on Sunday. Afghan army chief who was speaking at the graduation of about 2,000 officers and soldiers at Kabul Military Training Center (KMTC) said they are ready to defend every corner of their country. "International terrorists, drug smugglers, terrorist's networks and rival countries have given hands to each other to face Afghanistan with will face with enemies who have sworn to destroy Afghanistan. "You must defend your country and its national honor, don't forget we are fighting with the enemies who have sworn to destroy this country." The graduated military members vow to defend the country with sacrificing their bloods. These fresh forces will soon join the battle fields across the country to fight against the anti-government insurgent groups. (ATN)

China to Build 10,000 Apartments in Kabul

KABUL - People's Republic of China is building 10,000 apartments in Kabul which would be provided to government officials on long-term installments. Minister of Urban Development Affairs and Housing says it is the second biggest housing project in Afghanistan after the assistance of former Soviet Union. Sayed Sadat Mansour Naderi said upon the completion of this project, a high number of government officials who do not have own homes would find permanent shelters. "These residential units would be constructed in a comparatively small area and would be provided to government officials, who do not have own homes or apartments, on long-term installments," he said.

"The implementation of this project would be a big step towards the institutionalization of the concept of 'affordable housing' in Afghanistan which can solve the problem of homelessness. It is also one of the characteristics for the economic growth and to help improve the living condition of working-class people to middle-class." Naderi said more than $100 billion have been spent in different areas in past 10 years which has ... (More on P4)...(8)

USAID, Agriculture Ministry to Continue Supporting Afghan Farmers

KABUL - The Afghan Ministry of Agriculture and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) on Saturday signed an agreement to further support Afghan farmers and the agribusiness community. The minister Assadullah Zamir and USAID mission director Herbert Smith agreed on the implementation of the Regional Agricultural Development Projects (RADP) 2016 Work Plans, according to a statement by the Ministry of Agriculture, Irrigation and Livestock (MAIL). The agreement is to make sure the work of USAID is in line with the goals and objectives of the ministry in regards to the development of Afghanistan's agricultural sector, it said. According to the statement, MAIL and USAID signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) last year stipulating that both parties would jointly approve each of RADP's annual work plans over the course of the five-year program. The purpose of the RADP program, worth over $300 million USD, is to improve the long-term food and economic security for rural Afghans in 21 provinces throughout the country, the statement reads. The MAIL-RADP partnership focuses on improving the productivity and profitability of wheat, high value crops, and livestock value chains, in addition to addressing the policy, legal, and regulatory constraints affecting value chain development, it continued. ...
